DETAILED ACTION

It is noted that the Terminal disclaimer filed in the case was submitted with regard to case 09/790,015, which is a typo. Applicant clearly intended to disclaim case 09/970,015. A corrected terminal disclaimer is required to be filed in response to this action or the provisional double patenting rejection previously made will continue to apply to the claims at issue.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments filed 4/01/09 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The arguments attack references individually where the rejections are based upon combinations of elements. Applicant is reminded that "one cannot show non-obviousness by attacking the references individually where, as here, the rejections are based on combinations of references." In re Keller, 208 USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981).

Applicants also allege failure to properly motivate or provide teachings from the prior art. Each combination set forth above is a properly set forth combination and it is the consideration of the totality of the references in proper combination with appropriate consideration of the Graham factors which has led to the conclusion of obviousness.

8. The declaration under 37 CFR 1.132 filed 7/18/2008 is insufficient to overcome the rejection of claims 1, 2, 8-10 and 12-19 based upon their prima facie obviousness as set forth in the last Office action because:

a. The declaration appears to be trying to establish a showing of commercial success, but fails to establish the necessary nexus between the claimed features and the increase in sales/demand. The declaration also fails to quantify, in an appreciable manner and "in a clear and convincing" manner what the change in sales/distribution/demand for products with the specific features of the claim. Specifically, the numbers presented are all estimates, and cite no methodology nor documentary evidence to support the conclusions of "30-50 million" of the slide cutter products. The statement that "AEP moves...3 million pieces" does not establish why those pieces are being moved relative to the "market" in 1998/1999 was 100,000 per year of Conventional cutters. This comparison is additionally flawed, since the "100,000" number comes from AEP alone,(See exhibits A-F; no other conventional cutter numbers from the total market being sought or provided). There is no base 'market' established in the evidence. The affiant states that "Reynolds film...represents about 12 million boxes annually" (with the claimed features of "cling") however since there is no showing of what the Reynolds numbers were prior to the alleged stealing, there can be no showing that the numbers are any different than what would have occurred without the alleged infringement. There is also no evidence in the record that the accused infringer actually meets the claims. Affiant has made no comparison of the claimed features to a single accused infringing product, nor has such a product been produced on the record.

b. There appears to be a declaration seeking to show that there has been copying by another (infringement). However, there is no comparison of the pending claim to the accused infringer, nor any evidence of duplication. The only comparison is "a very novel cling of plastic wrap"; no conclusion may be drawn as to the pending claims.

c. In element 11 of the declaration, Affiant asserts that the product (as in claim 1) "and duplicates" have penetrated as much as 25 % of the retail sales market. There is no factual evidence to support this assertion in the record. Nor is there any information on how this number was generated. The total number of alleged duplicates (from element 15 of the declaration) is between 30 and 50 million. if this is only 25 % of the market, where is there evidence of 90-150 million total cutting devices of a non-infringing nature. The numbers of estimates are just that-estimates, with no supporting evidence. The allegation that the market has expanded from 100,000 total rail style cutters (flawed due to only citing AEP cutters) to 30 million (flawed at least due to estimation) does not give the kind of probative evidence that is useful in determining the obviousness of the claims at bar.

d. Regarding element 13 of the declaration, the number of countries where alleged “duplicates” of the product defined by the claims at issue are used, is interesting, but there is no evidence to support the conclusion that the accused devices are copied from applicant, or that they infringe on applicant.

Applicant is reminded; from MPEP 716.03 : Commercial Success >I. < NEXUS BETWEEN CLAIMED INVENTION AND EVIDENCE OF COMMERCIAL SUCCESS REQUIRED An applicant who is asserting commercial success to support its contention of nonobviousness bears the burden of proof of establishing a nexus between the claimed invention and evidence of commercial success. The Federal Circuit has acknowledged that applicant bears the burden of establishing nexus, stating: In the ex parte process of examining a patent application, however, the PTO lacks the means or resources to gather evidence which supports or refutes the applicant's assertion that the sale constitute commercial success. C.f. Ex parte Remark, 15 USPQ2d 1498, 1503 (Bd. Pat. App. & Int. 1990)(evidentiary routine of shifting burdens in civil proceedings inappropriate in ex parte prosecution proceedings because examiner has no available means for adducing evidence). Consequently, the PTO must rely upon the applicant to provide hard evidence of commercial success. In re Huang , 100 F.3d 135, 139-40, 40 USPQ2d 1685, 1689 (Fed. Cir. 1996). See also In re GPAC, 57 F.3d 1573, 1580, 35 USPQ2d 1116, 1121 (Fed. Cir. 1995); In re Paulsen, 30 F.3d 1475, 1482, 31 USPQ2d 1671, 1676 (Fed. Cir. 1994) (Evidence of commercial success of articles not covered by the claims subject to the 35 U.S.C. 103 rejection was not probative of nonobviousness).

The term "nexus" designates a factually and legally sufficient connection between the evidence of commercial success and the claimed invention so that the evidence is of probative value in the determination of nonobviousness. Demaco Corp. v. F. Von Langsdorff Licensing Ltd., 851 F.2d 1387, 7 USPQ2d 1222 (Fed. Cir. 1988).

Also from 713 .06(b):

"an applicant must show that the claimed features were responsible for the commercial success of an article if the evidence of nonobviousness is to be accorded substantial weight. See In re Huang, 100 F.3d 135, 140, 40 USPQ2d 1685, 1690 (Fed. Cir. 1996) (Inventor's opinion as to the purchaser's reason for buying the product is insufficient to demonstrate a nexus between the sales and the claimed invention.). Merely showing that there was commercial success of an article which embodied the invention is not sufficient.

In view of the foregoing, when all of the evidence is considered, the totality of the rebuttal evidence of nonobviousness fails to outweigh the evidence of obviousness."

Conclusion

9. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
